

COASTAL ROOTS FARM

A YEAR in REVIEW

October 1, 2025 - September 30, 2026

REFLECTIONS FROM OUR LEADERSHIP

Land Acknowledgement

Coastal Roots Farm recognizes and honors this land as indigenous to the Kumeyaay and nearby Luiseño peoples, and recognizes that acknowledgement in itself is not enough.

Agriculture has a history built upon systems of exploitation (of land, resources, and people), and these systems still perpetuate social inequity today. We are committed to partnerships that benefit and support local indigenous communities and seek to continue deepening our understanding of the history of colonialization.

Dear Friends of the Farm,

FY26 was a year of deep community need and consequential change. Across San Diego County, rising food costs and persistent hunger made the Farm's work more urgent. One in four San Diegans struggles to put three nutritious meals on the table each day, and changes to SNAP added pressure for many households.

The Farm's response begins with a simple truth: caring for the land and caring for one another are inseparable. We grew almost 100,000 pounds of organic food using regenerative practices that help restore soil and build resilience in a changing climate. More than 70% of our harvest was donated, helping feed 50,000 people - including Holocaust survivors, seniors, Tribal members, and young families working hard to make ends meet. This is more than a distribution system. It is a tangible expression of our Jewish responsibility to one another, and a way for neighbors to access nourishing food with dignity when they need it most.

That same care shapes who we welcome to the Farm. Young people come for hands-on environmental education that builds knowledge, curiosity, and a lasting connection to the natural world. Coastal Roots Farm is also a unique place for Jewish life: a Jewish farm where people across generations and backgrounds gather, connect with one another, and explore Jewish values through relationship with the land. As antisemitism surges, that community matters more than ever. The Farm offers a safe haven for Jewish expression, learning, questions, and belonging, while welcoming neighbors of all backgrounds into meaningful connection with one another.

We also faced a changing funding landscape and made difficult choices to prepare the Farm for what lies ahead. We refined our work, doubled down on feeding our community, and sharpened our programming so our resources can sustain the impact people count on.

We are deeply grateful to Javier Guerrero for his eight years of dedicated leadership and service, and we look forward to carrying the Farm's mission into its next chapter together.

Thank you to the donors, volunteers, partners, staff, and neighbors who made this work possible. Your support helps create a healthier climate, a more nourished community, and a welcoming place to learn, connect, and belong.

With gratitude,

Kesha Dorsey

GUIDED BY JEWISH VALUES

What makes a Jewish farm?

At Coastal Roots Farm, the seasons of planting and harvest meet the Jewish calendar. Together, they shape how we grow, gather, and mark sacred time. Jewish values guide how we care for the land, share food with neighbors in need, and welcome people to learn, celebrate, and connect. By bringing agriculture and Jewish life together, we build community and deepen our connection to the earth.

Sacred Time

The Jewish calendar and tradition guide how we farm, rest, celebrate, mourn, and what we uplift communally as sacred.

A space where everyone is welcome

We offer many entry points to explore Jewish traditions through inclusive, hands-on experiences with the land. People of all backgrounds are invited to connect with nature, food, and one another—fostering understanding, joy, and community while countering bias and strengthening allyship.

"The Farm Stand has changed our lives for the better."

"My husband was hit by a drunk driver and is now permanently disabled and on a fixed income. I can include fresh, organic food in our meals, and it wouldn't be possible without the Farm Stand. My children do not get sick very often. We have been able to purchase several plant varieties and grow them on our own. My son has volunteered (and plans to continue).

The Farm Stand makes eating healthy and earth-conscious a possibility when otherwise, it would not be possible."

-Lizette (family of 5)

ROOTED IN THE SOIL

FROM THE GROUND, UP

Regenerative agriculture is at the heart of how we grow food and care for the land. At Coastal Roots Farm, we use farming practices that restore soil health, conserve water, capture carbon, and support biodiversity. By working with nature rather than against it, we grow nutrient-dense, organic food while strengthening ecosystems and building resilience to climate change.

Healthy soil is the foundation of a healthy food system. Through research-informed practices and a commitment to continuous learning, our farmers demonstrate how agriculture can nourish communities, restore the environment, and support a more sustainable future.

Field-to-Research: REGEN-OVATION

We don't just farm, we innovate. At Coastal Roots Farm, our certified organic, regenerative farm serves as a living laboratory for soil health and regenerative agriculture research. Working alongside leading universities like UCSD, research institutions, and nonprofit organizations, we're advancing climate-smart farming through field-based science and real-world application.

Weekly soil samples conducted by UCSD document healthier soils and reduced disease pressure. By pairing rigorous scientific research with place-based farming, we demonstrate that regeneration is a long-term commitment to ecological health and resilience.

This year we refined our farming methods by implementing new regenerative techniques and trialing produce varietals. We're seeing that success in our highest yield year ever—growing almost 100,000 pounds of food in FY26, with records for Q4 and the month of August.

SHARING OUR HARVEST

REDUCING COMMUNITY HUNGER

Access to fresh, nutritious food should not depend on income. We grow organic produce and share the majority (73%) of our harvest with neighbors facing food insecurity. Through our Pay-What-You-Can Farm Stand and partnerships with community organizations across San Diego County, we remove financial barriers to healthy food.

In 2026, SNAP (CalFresh/Food Stamps) was hit with two major rounds of cuts affecting some of San Diegos most vulnerable communities. As food costs rise and community needs grow, we remain committed to nourishing our neighbors with dignity and building a more equitable, resilient food system.

GROWING FUTURE LEADERS

CRADLE TO CAREER PROGRAMS

From childhood through adulthood, our hands-on programs spark curiosity, build practical skills, and nurture future environmental stewards. Through outdoor exploration, farm-based learning, and leadership opportunities, students, campers, and volunteers learn about science, sustainability, nutrition, and agriculture—from planting a first seed to preparing for a career in sustainable agriculture.

FARM CAMP NOW ACA ACCREDITED

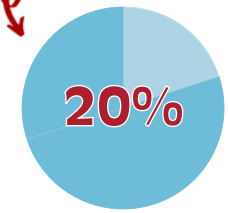

Farm Camp is now accredited by the American Camp Association (ACA), recognizing our commitment to safe, high-quality camp experiences. Since 2019, we've welcomed more than 6,000 campers to explore nature through hands-on farming, cooking, science, and outdoor play. This exciting milestone reflects our continued dedication to creating meaningful learning experiences that inspire curiosity, deepen connections to the land, and cultivate the next generation of environmental stewards.

GROWING JEWISH LIFE

WHERE BELONGING AND ALLYSHIP TAKE ROOT

Coastal Roots Farm welcomes people of all ages, identities, and backgrounds to experience Jewish life through connection to the land and one another. Rooted in Jewish wisdom and the rhythms of nature, our inclusive, intergenerational holiday programs, agricultural festivals, workshops, and gatherings offer many low-barrier ways to learn, celebrate, and engage with Jewish traditions. These shared experiences deepen belonging, mutual respect, and allyship, strengthening connections across generations and our care for one another and the Earth.

Why the Farm?

Top Motivators for Attending FY26 Programs and Events

- Jewish Values and Community
- Attending with Friends
- Interest in Regenerative Agriculture
- Sense of Belonging

A Year of Jewish Holidays

At each new moon, we welcome a new Jewish month and reconnect with the land and one another. Rooted in earth-based Judaism, we mark every major holiday together, from Rosh Hashanah to Shavuot. These intergenerational, low-barrier gatherings make sacred time meaningful and accessible, helping people find connection and belonging.

2,105 people attended 63 community programs & events.

"I wanted to thank you tremendously for the wonderful experience I had at the adult camp yesterday! I loved learning about caring for the earth being a big part of Jewish values."

BALANCING MISSION & MARGIN

Growing Community, Changing Landscape

This year, more donors joined us and more people engaged with the Farm—a meaningful sign of trust and connection. As we look to FY27, we're focused on strengthening the Farm's long-term sustainability and building reserves for the future. Gifts, volunteer time, and partnerships at every level help us serve our community today and build toward that goal.
